Subject: RE: Proposed Waikato District Plan - hatcheries and breeder farms odour effects

Hi Joan

I have looked into the matter further. Based on the current operation of hatcheries and breeder farms odour effects are not a matter that would be likely to trigger a change to the current approach in the Regional Plan that consent is not required for these activities.

As an aside I do see that there are numerous odour complaints related to chicken manure mostly around spreading, please feed this back to the Poultry Industry Group.

David

Subject: Proposed Waikato District Plan - hatcheries and breeder farms odour effects

Hi Joan

I concur with that view that currently hatcheries and breeder farms are at low risk of odour effects but it is not that soundly based as I do not deal with all the complaints that come in. I'll enquire into it and get back to you.

David

Subject: Proposed Waikato District Plan

Hi David,

I am assisting the combined Poultry Industry Group in its submissions on the Proposed Waikato DP. One of the issues that has come up is the way in which the WPDP defines poultry farming and intensive farming. We want to ensure that both breeder farms and hatcheries are not caught in the intensive farming rule as that will require them to get resource consents. Some of these activities might need consent triggered by the amount of sheds but we don't see them creating the same amenity effects as meat chicken or egg laying operations.

We have indicated to the s 42A writer that neither hatcheries nor breeder farms require a WRC air discharge consent because there are few adverse effects of these activities however it is very much our word on that issue.

We are hoping that you can provide an email confirming that neither breeder farms nor hatcheries normally trigger the need for a WRC air discharge consent within the Waikato. Is that possible?

Ta Joan
